GIBBS PAINTINGS AT AUCTION.

THE 90 'PICTURES IN THE FIRST OFFERING BRING $15,215.

John F. Carroll, Hugh J. Grant and Other Friends of the Late Owner Among the Purchasers—Top Price Was $680, for Homer Martin's "Golden Sands."

Ninety of the paintings in the collection of the late Frederick S. Gibbs, which Mr. Gibbs's executors have ordered to be dispersed at auction, were sold by Thomas E. Kirby of the American Art Association in Mendelsohn Hall last evening for $15,215. It was the first sale of the winter of sufficient importance to take place in Mendelsohn Hall, which has taken the place of old Chickering Hall as the theatre for the public sale of important art collections, New York having no Governmental auction room like the Hôtel Drouot, and no rooms exactly duplicating those of Messrs. Christie, Manson & Woods. Mendelsohn Hall was crowded with buyers, bidders and other persons interested in the Gibbs pictures, some of whom, who were not buyers last evening, will figure among the purchasers to-night or to-morrow night, when the better offerings will come under Mr. Kirby's small ivory hammer.

A considerable percentage of last evening's attendance—some professionals, some amateurs and some merely interested laymen—had apparently come to look over the ground as revealed by the first night's auction, to learn something of the indications of what prices were to rule in this sale, which is in some respects the most interesting from the standpoint of American art that has taken place since the Thomas B. Clarke sale in 1898. Mr. Gibbs had acquired the usual potful of variegated canvases entitled to no serious consideration which the uninitiated collector is bound to accumulate, and many of these were disposed of last evening, with a small number of representative paintings, forerunners of the best offerings of to-night and to-morrow night. The indiscriminate lots brought the average of the evening down, but the prices of a few of the American paintings indicated the interest which some of the better examples are to bring out in the succeeding evenings of the sale.

Some of the political friends of Senator Gibbs were among the attendants at the sale, John F. Carroll, W. M. K. Olcott, County Clerk Hamilton and Hugh J. Grant figuring in the list of purchasers. The Senator's brother, Dr. J. Wilson Gibbs, bought a number of the pictures. The purchaser of the Innesses was supposed to have screened himself behind a pseudonym, because his name had not heretofore figured in the seasonal lists of picture buyers. Macbeth, the dealer, bought the exquisite Homer Martin "Golden Sands" for $680, top price of the night.

SALE OF THE GIBBS PICTURES.

PART OF THE COLLECTION SOLD
FOR MORE THAN IT ALL COST.

Yesterday's Total Was $25,280 for the 97 Pictures—$40,495 for the Two Days—Wyant's "Keene Valley" Goes for $1,525—Paintings as an Investment.

Patrons of the auction sale of the late F. S. Gibbs's paintings, held in Mendelssohn Hall, appreciated generously Senator Gibbs's choice of pictures at the second session of the auction last evening. For the ninety-seven pictures sold $25,280 was paid, which with the $15,215 proceeds of Wednesday evening's sale makes the total to date $40,495, or considerably more than, according to report, the whole collection cost Mr. Gibbs, thereby once more demonstrating the value of paintings as an investment, even in a very miscellaneous collection. The concluding session of the Gibbs auction comes this evening, when the best and most interesting and valuable of his paintings are to be offered.

Wyant's "Keene Valley, New Hampshire," brought the highest price last evening, going to T. R. Ball for $1,525, and a firm of dealers took Wyant's "Golden Hour" at $1,000. George Inness's "Evening on the Hudson" went at $900, and Murphy's "Sundown" at $600.

$91,140 FOR GIBBS PICTURES.

END OF THE SALE OF THE LATE SENATOR'S PAINTINGS.

A Blakelock, "The Pipe Dance," Goes for $3,100, the Top Figure of the Collection—An Inness Brings $2,550—Ziem's "Grand Canal" Goes for $3,000

Nearly all of the most interesting paintings in the late Senator F. S. Gibbs's collection had been put in the lot to be sold on the third and last evening of the auction, and they brought the receipts of last evening's sale at Mendelssohn Hall up above the $50,000 mark.

When Mr. Kirby's gavel fell on the sale of the last picture of the 233 in the catalogue, the grand total of proceeds for the three evenings was $91,140, to which is to be added several hundred dollars receipts from the sale of Mr. Gibbs's collection of art books and of catalogues of other collections, which were disposed of in the American art galleries on Thursday afternoon.

These figures for a collection not remarkable for any particularly distinguished canvases, and replete with mediocrity, rather go to show that the common fear that this would be an inauspicious season for the disposal of pictures was a groundless one after all.

Blakelock's, "The Pipe Dance," brought the highest price of the night, $3,100. It was bought by George A. Hearn. The underbidder was the Brooklyn Institute. There was a good competition for Martin's "On the Seine," which went at $2,200. Murphy's, "Afternoon in September," which cost Mr. Gibbs $1,550 a couple of years ago at the Sullivan sale, went for $1,250, but this slight falling off was not a noticeable characteristic of the sale.

Miner's "Evening," went at $1,625. Sargent's small canvas, 7½x12 inches, "The Sun Bath," which Mr. Gibbs bought a few seasons ago at a public sale for $450, at $575; Inness's "Sunshine and Shadow" at $1,075, and his "Light Triumphant" at $1,150. These last two pictures were painted for Henry Ward Beecher.

Curious underground rumors that had been set going, expressing doubts of the authorship of Inness's "The Approaching Storm" were clearly without adverse effect, as the bidding for this painting started at $1,000 and was keen up to $2,550, at which price it sold. A glance at the list of pictures sold will reveal that the paintings which gave Mr. Gibbs's collection its chief claim to attention, those by the Americans, Homer, Inness, Wyant, Murphy, Miner, and so on, did not go begging, although the sale was without sensational prices.

Following are the paintings sold, with names of artists and buyers and prices:

BBS PAINTINGS AT AUCTION.

Sun, —————— 2-25-04,
THE 90 PICTURES IN THE FIRST
OFFERING BRING $15,215.

In F. Carroll, Hugh J. Grant and Other Friends of the Late Owner Among the Purchasers—Top Price Was $680, for Homer Martin's "Golden Sands."

Ninety of the paintings in the collection of the late Frederick S. Gibbs, which Mr. Gibbs's executors have ordered to be dispersed at auction, were sold by Thomas E. Kirby of the American Art Association in Mendelssohn Hall last evening for $15,215. It is the first sale of the winter of sufficient importance to take place in Mendelssohn Hall, which has taken the place of old Ulicking Hall as the theatre for the public sale of important art collections, New York having no Governmental auction room like the Hôtel Drouot, and no rooms tactfully duplicating those of Messrs. Christie, Manson & Woods. Mendelssohn Hall was crowded with buyers, bidders and other persons interested in the Gibbs pictures, some of whom, who were not buyers last evening, will figure among the purchasers-night or to-morrow night, when the better offerings will come under Mr. Kirby's nail ivory hammer.

A considerable percentage of last evening's attendance—some professionals, some amateurs and some merely interested laymen—had apparently come to look over the ground as revealed by the first night's auction, to learn something of the indications of what prices were to rule in his sale, which is in some respects the most interesting from the standpoint of American art that has taken place since the Thomas B. Clarke sale in 1898. Mr. Gibbs had acquired the usual potful ofriegated canvases entitled to no serious consideration which the uninitiated collector is bound to accumulate, and many of these were disposed of last evening, with a small number of representative paintings, forerunners of the best offerings to-night and to-morrow night. The discriminate lots brought the average of the evening down, but the prices of a few of the American paintings indicated the interest which some of the better examples are to bring out in the succeeding evenings of the sale.

Some of the political friends of Senator Gibbs were among the attendants at the sale, John F. Carroll, W. M. K. Olcott, County Clerk Hamilton and Hugh J. Grant figuring in the list of purchasers. The Senator's brother, Dr. J. Wilson Gibbs, bought a number of the pictures. The purchaser of the Innesses was supposed to have screened himself behind a pseudonym, because his name had not heretofore figured in the seasonal lists of picture buyers. Macbeth, the dealer, bought the same Homer Martin "Golden Sands" for $680, top price of the night.

SALE OF THE GIBBS COLLECTION,
Sun, —————— 2-26-04.
PART OF THE COLLECTION SOLD
FOR MORE THAN IT ALL COST.

Yesterday's Total Was $25,280 for the 97 Pictures—$40,495 for the Two Days—Wyant's "Keene Valley" Goes for $1,525—Paintings as an Investment.

Patrons of the auction sale of the late F. S. Gibbs's paintings, held in Mendelssohn Hall, appreciated generously Senator Gibbs's choice of pictures at the second session of the auction last evening. For the ninety-seven pictures sold $25,280 was paid, which with the $15,215 proceeds of Wednesday evening's sale makes the total to date $40,495, or considerably more than, according to report, the whole collection cost Mr. Gibbs, thereby once more demonstrating the value of paintings as an investment, even in a very miscellaneous collection. The concluding session of the Gibbs auction comes this evening, when the best and most interesting and valuable of his paintings are to be offered.

Wyant's "Keene Valley, New Hampshire," brought the highest price last evening, going to T. R. Ball for $1,525, and a firm of dealers took Wyant's "Golden Hour" at $1,000. George Inness's "Evening on the Hudson" went at $900, and Murphy's "Sun-down" at $600.

Following are the pictures sold, with artists' and buyers' names and prices:

$91,140 FOR GIBBS PICTURES. , Sun — 2-27-04. END OF THE SALE OF THE LATE SENATOR'S PAINTINGS.

A Blakelock, "The Pipe Dancer," Goes for $3,100, the Top Figure of the Collection—An Inness Brings $2,550—Ziem's "Grand Canal" Goes for $3,000

Nearly all of the most interesting paintings in the late Senator F. S. Gibbs's collection had been put in the lot to be sold on the third and last evening of the auction, and they brought the receipts of last evening's sale at Mendelssohn Hall up above the $50,000 mark.

When Mr. Kirby's gavel fell on the sale of the last picture of the 283 in the catalogue, the grand total of proceeds for the three evenings was $91,140, to which is to be added several hundred dollars receipts from the sale of Mr. Gibbs's collection of art books and of catalogues of other collections, which were disposed of in the American art galleries on Thursday afternoon.

These figures for a collection not remarkable for any particularly distinguished canvases, and replete with mediocrity, rather go to show that the common fear that this would be an inauspicious season for the disposal of pictures was a groundless one after all.

Blakelock's, "The Pipe Dancer," brought the highest price of the night, $3,100. It was bought by George A. Hearn. The under bidder was the Brooklyn Institute. There was a good competition for years ago at the Sullivan sale, went for $1,250, but this slight falling off was not a noticeable characteristic of the sale.

Miner's "Evening," went at $1,625. Sergeant's small canvas, 7½x12 inches, "The Sun Bath," which Mr. Gibbs bought a few seasons ago at a public sale for $450, at $575; Inness's "Sunshine and Shadow" at $1,075, and his "Light Triumphant" at $1,150. These last two pictures were painted for Henry Ward Beecher.

Curious underground rumors that had been set going, expressing doubts of the authorship of Inness's "The Approaching Storm" were clearly without adverse effect, as the bidding for this painting started at $1,000 and was keen up to $2,550, at which price it sold. A glance at the list of pictures sold will reveal that the paintings which gave Mr. Gibbs's collection its chief claim to attention, those by the Americans, Homer, Inness, Wyant, Murphy, Minor, and so on, did not go begging, although the sale was without sensational prices.

Following are the paintings sold, with names of artists and buyers and prices:

RICHARD CREIFELDS

1—EVENING

Evening Sloop

In the foreground is part of an inlet with a sloop and a row-boat moored to the rough bank, and beyond is a farming country with scattered trees and, on the right, the spire of a village church with the crescent of the new moon in the evening sky above.

Signed at the right, R. CREIFELDS.

RALPH ALBERT BLAKELOCK

Creek At Dusk

2—LANDSCAPE

On both sides of the picture great masses of foliage are in silhouette against a quiet evening sky, and in the middle distance is a sunlit hillside. A pool which echoes the color of the clouds reaches from the right two-thirds across the foreground.

Signed at the left, R. A. BLAKELOCK.

Height, 4 inches; length, 7 inches.

5-5.00

LÉON CAILLE

3—GUITAR PLAYER

John F. Carroll

A young woman in white chemise, red bodice and black petticoat is seated at a table, holding a guitar across her lap. On the table is a piece of blue drapery with a white vase of flowers. Over the back of the chair, relieved against a wardrobe, is a red kerchief.

Height, 6 inches; width, 4 inches.

E. L. HENRY, N.A.

4—MEETIN'S OUT

100.00

H. B. Strang

In the broad village street in front of the enclosure around a large church with a lofty spire rising high against a summer sky, the country people are gathered for a few moments' gossip before returning to their homes. In the foreground is an old-fashioned chaise, drawn by a white horse, in which a farmer sits with his wife and child and a dog, and, leaning forward, exchanges gossip with a quaintly dressed villager, who, accompanied by his wife and two children, stands on the little green.

Signed at the right, E. L. HENRY.

5—MORNING

N.Y. Co-operative Society

A long row of trees which are varied in shape and of different heights extends across the middle distance in strong contrast against a blue sky partly covered by drifting white clouds and a line of far-away hills. In the foreground is the bend of a river with a boat moored to the bank.

Height, 5½ inches; length, 9 inches.

LOUIS MOELLER, N.A.

6—THE OLDEST INHABITANT

C. L. Gregor

An old man sits facing the spectator, busy whittling a stick. He is dressed in a gray shirt, black waistcoat and brown trousers and the figure is seen to the knees only. In the background is a barrel, a coat and hat hung against the wall and part of a window.

Signed at the right, LOUIS MOELLER, N.A.

Height, 7 inches; width, 5 inches.

- C. 00
J. CRAWFORD THOM

7—CHILDREN AT PLAY

E. C. Anderson

Two gnarled and broken tree trunks have fallen on the grass near a country road, and two little boys and a girl are playing horse with them. A toddling child is standing in the grass behind and the group is in full sunlight against a low growth of small trees and bushes, over which, on the left, dominates a great spreading apple tree.

Signed at the right, J. C. THOM, '92.

Height, 7½ inches; length, 11½ inches.

90.00
F. VAN SEVERDONCK

8—SHEEP AND FOWL

R. C. Vose

Two sheep and a pair of lambs are grouped in a grassy bit of pasture near a pool. One of the ewes stands alertly watching over her young. A drake is just about to swim across the pool and a cock and hen feed in the near foreground. The horizon is low and a great rounded cloud half covers the sky.

9—THE PASTURE POND

John C. Black

In the foreground a fair-sized pool or pond reflects the clouds and the deep tones of a clump of trees which grows near by and, mostly in shadow, is in strong contrast against a sunlit slope and the sky. On the left in the extreme distance, beyond a few isolated trees, is a wood. Near the zenith is a strip of blue, broken by a small white cloud.

Signed at the left, J. F. MURPHY.

Height, 5 inches; length, 7 inches.

RALPH ALBERT BLAKELOCK

10—SUMMER IN THE CATSKILLS

A. E. Humphrey.

Stately trees on the left extend out of the picture at the top. On the right the irregular line of a rocky hillside is in contrast against a simple sky which has a few strong accents near the horizon. A rivulet tumbles over the rocks in the foreground.

Height, 7 inches; width, 4½ inches.

JOSEF EMANUEL WEISER

12—IN A CARDINAL'S LIBRARY

John E. Steiner

A cardinal in full robes is seated in a richly upholstered easy chair before a table on which is a pile of old books together with a pewter jug, a globe, an inkstand and a few papers. He is absorbed in reading one of the volumes and does not observe that a smiling serving maid is handing him a letter.

ADOLPHE SCHILL

14—IN THE VESTIBULE

Dr. J. N. Gibb

Judging from a hat, a scarf and an umbrella which are deposited on a hat rack, the owner of these articles, an old priest, has just returned from a walk. He stands near the door with an ample red handkerchief in his right hand. A hanging clock on the wall marks the approach of the dinner hour.

VICTOR CHAVET

15—THE PROMENADE

Mrs. Sigrist

A lady in a Watteau dress of pink silk with white satin petticoat stands in path in the château garden holding in front of her a bunch of flowers and a folded parasol. A little King Charles spaniel gambols in front of her. In the background is a mass of tall trees in full foliage with the blue sky showing through here and there.

Signed at the bottom, V. CHAVET.

Height, 8 inches; width, 5 inches.

E. L. HENRY, N.A.

16—RETURNING FROM THE WALK

Daniel Barber Jr.

Through a gateway, where the rank ivy has entirely covered one stone post and spanned the opening with an arch of green leaves, is seen in full sunlight the figure of a young lady dressed in white with a red shawl over her arms, and accompanied by two pet dogs. In the shadow of the ivy-covered wall on the right is a garden seat with a parasol, a book and a shawl.

GERARD PORTIELJE

18—THE GAMESTERS' QUARREL

Daniel Huber Jr.

A crowd of men have been playing some simple game of chance at a large table in a cabaret and a dispute has arisen. An excited workman has overturned his chair and is about to attack his opponent, but is restrained by a little girl who clings to him in fright. In the background is a quaint wooden staircase and balcony, on the right a doorway and on the left a fireplace.

Height, 7 inches; length, 9½ inches.

IGNACIO DE LEON Y ESCOSURA

19—REVERIE

John F. Carroll

A young lady in Elizabethan costume, wearing a red bodice trimmed with rich lace, and a pale green petticoat, is seated at a table, leaning her head on her right hand and thoughtfully contemplating an open letter. There is a Delft vase full of flowers and a casket on the table, and in the background a Dutch mirror hangs on a wall of Spanish leather.

Signed at the left, LEON Y ESCOSURA.

Height, 11 inches; width, 8 inches.

A. BERTZIK

20—MARGUERITE

70.<sup>00</sup>

Mrs. Siegrist

The maiden dressed in a rich velvet gown with feathers in her hair is standing in a pathway which winds under the willows through a glade in a great park. She plucks the leaves from a flower as if repeating, "He loves me, loves me not." On the left under great oaks is a vista to a distant gentle slope with a mass of trees beyond.

ALEXANDER H. WYANT, N.A.

21—LATE NOVEMBER

John F. Carroll

A muddy road or broad path leads from the foreground across a rough meadow and disappears in the middle distance among clumps of bare bushes and dead weeds and grass. There are a few farmhouses and a wood in the extreme distance and the sky is almost entirely covered by confused cloud forms.

Signed at the left, A. H. WYANT.

Height, 7½ inches; length, 10 inches.

EDWARD PORTIELJE

25.00

22—A PLEASING REFLECTION

John F. Carroll

In a sumptuous interior crowded with richly upholstered furniture a young lady in a pale blue jacket and ample white satin petticoat is seated near a table on which stands a copper vase full of flowers, holding in her left hand a small ornamental mirror in which she is studying her own reflection. Her left hand holds a bunch of flowers in her lap.

IRVING R. WILES, N.A.

23—THOUGHTFUL

Wm. Galpin

This is the head and bust of a young girl seated half back to the spectator with her head slightly turned over her right shoulder. She has auburn hair and wears a dress of soft gray material trimmed with mauve.

Signed at the right, IRVING R. WILES.

Height, 9 inches; width, 7 inches.

J. FRANCIS MURPHY, N.A.

24—A SUNSET GLEAM

400.00

F. E. J. Curtis

In a flat marshy country a clump of trees, some in autumn foliage and others bare of leaves, shelter a simple cottage and form with it a mass of rich color against a golden sunset. A broad gleam of amber light breaks from the low clouds and flashes across the sky, imparting a rich glow to the desolate waste of pasture and reflecting in a sedgy pool in the foreground.

Signed at the left, J. FRANCIS MURPHY, 1901.

Height, 12 inches; length, 16 inches.

55.00 RALPH ALBERT BLAKELOCK

25—WATERFALL IN THE CATSKILLS

R. A. Blakelock

A stream flowing through a well-wooded region tumbles over a ledge of rock in the foreground, winding round under an irregular clump of lofty trees on the left which dominate in mass the rest of the landscape. Rosy clouds are scattered over the sky and the sun is just sinking behind a low, distant hill.

Height, 8½ inches; width, 8½ inches.

BRUNEL NEUVILLE

55.00 26—KITTENS

Dr. J. M. Gibb

Three small, spotted kittens are sitting around a plate full of food on a rough tiled floor, and a third is climbing out of a box filled with straw, near which, in the background, is a birch broom leaning against the wall.

Height, 8½ inches; length, 10½ inches.

BLANDFORD FLETCHER

27—ENGLISH COTTAGE GARDEN

Albert A. Falk

In the foreground a gardener is hoeing over one of the small patches into which the cultivated ground is divided, and beyond the garden a row of thatched outhouses and a large two-storied cottage, also thatched, extend across the horizon and with a few trees make an irregular sky-line.

Signed at the right, BLANDFORD FLETCHER.

Height, 8 inches; length, 12 inches.

HENRY A. LOOP, N.A.

28—HAPPY FANCIES

210.00

Henry A. Loop

A mother in simple robe of thin white material lies on her back on the grass in a pleasant forest glade. One arm is thrown over her head and the other is stretched out toward a rock on the edge of a pool in the immediate foreground. Sitting beside the mother and resting against her knees is the nude figure of a small child who holds a clover leaf to the chin of the smiling woman.

29—AN AUTUMN SUNSET

J. F. Murphy

In the left of the foreground is a small pool shimmering in the evening light, and from the right a rough level meadow, broken here and there by rocks and tufts of dry herbage, sweeps away around the corner of a wood to the distance where the ground rises to a range of low wooded hills. The light of the sky is focussed near the horizon in the middle of the picture and the warm glow from the setting sun further enriches the autumn tints on the trees and grass.

Signed at the right, J. FRANCIS MURPHY, 1901.

Height, 8 inches; length, 10 inches.

JEAN JACQUES HENNER

30—A HEAD

J. J. Henner

280.00

This is the profile of a young girl lighted from above, the head slightly lowered and the eyes cast down. There is a mass of brown hair framing her face and falling over the shoulders, and the strong light on her chest brings into strong relief the red velvet of her bodice.

105.<sup>00</sup>

35—THE WOODLAND FARM

B. C. Koekhoek

A Flemish peasant woman, accompanied by her dog, walks along a muddy road which winds to the right foreground between a rude shelter and a thatched hovel. A flock of sheep, driven by a man in a red cloak, follows her. In the middle distance, in a passage of strong sunlight, a large farmhouse, with its roof partly tiled and partly thatched, stands on a grassy knoll under high trees.

PAUL GROLLERON

39—A FROSTY MORNING

From Sittenham

A French cavalryman in a gray overcoat covering a blue and red uniform, and a brass helmet with horsehair plume, is standing in a path, lighting his pipe. In the distance behind him, half hidden by the inequalities of the ground, three comrades are gathered around a camp fire.

ANTONIO TAMBURINI

40—“SAY WHEN”

A. O. Deshong

In the wine cellar of a monastery two monks are engaged in the pleasant occupation of tasting the new vintage. One of them pours the rich fluid from a flask into a wineglass held by his companion, who leans on a large red umbrella. On the left is a great wicker-covered demijohn, rather the worse for wear, a flask, and an earthen pan under the tap of a huge wine cask. On the right, in the background, is a doorway with a small grated window above it.

53—POLING UP STREAM

A. H. Falk

(Water Color)

A man is poling a red skiff up a shallow but broad stream which flows between rocky banks in a broken country where scattered trees grow on the bluffs and there are few signs of cultivation. There are patches of sunlight here and there on the rocks and trees, and scattered cumulus clouds partly cover the sky.

105—DEFENDING THE WALL

65.00

C. E. Rushmore

The fight is raging around a country residence, and behind a low plastered wall which has been partly overthrown a line of French infantrymen have established themselves and are doing effective work. In the foreground an officer with his left arm in a sling leans on the wall, holding his sword in his hand. On the right is a peaceful landscape and beyond the cloud of battle smoke is a simple sky with clouds near the horizon.

257—A CLOUDY DAY

130.00

The rounded contour of a grass-grown hillside cuts the sky at the left, and on the right meets the dark mass of an irregular growth of trees. The slope is broken here and there by a bit of rock or a bunch of dried grass; and the sky, which occupies nearly two-thirds of the composition, is covered with broad gray clouds in simple masses with a point of light above the trees on the right.

EMILIO SANCHEZ-PERRIER

258—A QUIET POOL

5-75.00

A narrow, placid stream which curves around under a bank fringed with densely growing willows broadens out in the foreground into a wide pool. A large boat with a single occupant floats on the right near the overhanging foliage of the bank, and on the left glistening sand spits rise a few inches above the surface of the water. A rank of rounded trees shows in the middle distance against a simple sky with mauve-tinted drifting clouds.

259—THE OLD FARM

259.

T. R. Ball

A rambling farm-house, rudely thatched and with roughly plastered walls, occupies a large part of the composition. There is a patch of strong sunlight on the wall around the door and on the roof and wall of the low gable on the left. The sunshine also touches the figure of a peasant woman about to enter the house, and the foreground, which is covered with scattered patches of grass. The sky is full of lowering clouds showing one or two strong accents of light and a spot of blue.

261—PASTURELAND, KAATERSKILL

#60.7 The sky is covered with luminous clouds, and the light is concentrated near the zenith. The broad flood of light is diffused over the landscape, uniting in a simple mass of color the great area of pasture land which stretches away to the distance where a coppice and a gently sloping hillside form the horizon, broken on the right by a rugged tree, bare of foliage. Two cows are feeding in the pasture, and near the foreground there is a marshy spot with small pools of water reflecting the sky.

J. FRANCIS MURPHY, N.A.

262—A GRAY DAY

J. F. Murphy

#60.10 There is a marshy spot in the broad pasture and near it, in the foreground on the left, grows a clump of willows and other trees touched with the breath of an early frost. In the middle distance in a broad passage of modified sunlight are a haystack and a farm building near a clump of trees. The lower part of the sky is covered with masses of clouds which are thinner near the zenith, and the blue of the heavens breaks through the veil of vapor.

PAUL JEAN CLAYS

263—EVENING CALM ON THE SCHELDT

6 25.00 M. Stroeder Jr.

Grouped around a great bluff-bowed brig which, with slack sails, forms the chief feature of the composition, are various motley craft common to the waters of the north of Europe. A Flemish fishing-boat with lee-boards and tanned sails has drifted against the bow of the brig, and a row-boat with three men floats near by. On the right are two strange-looking sailing-vessels, and beyond in the far distance are the hazy forms of the towers and spires of the city of Antwerp. The blue sky is half veiled by fleecy clouds.

A broad muddy road leads directly from the foreground to the middle distance where it turns to the left and disappears around an open clump of trees. On the right is an orchard and in the far distance is a low range of hills. The vaporous clouds which cover the sky are softened by a diffused light, and here and there are spots of blue showing between the clouds.

267—A POOL IN THE MEADOW

John F. Carroll

7/19

A broad shadow extends across the horizon and the water in a narrow pool glistens among the grass. Beyond the shadow an isolated tree in full summer foliage stands in a sunlit field where, in the distance, two cows are feeding. The horizon is broken by a row of tall trees and large ledge of rock covered by grass and bushes. A broad mass of lofty clouds fills the lower part of the sky and, above, the blue breaks through and is partly hidden by a mass of light drifting vapor.

ALEXANDER H. WYANT, N.A.

269—AN AUTUMN EVENING

1025

The sun has just gone down behind a range of hills in the horizon, and flashes of warm light accent the cloud-covered sky. The foreground is a rough pasture partly covered with trees sloping toward a small lake in the middle distance, where a glimmer of light from the sky makes a bright spot in the early twilight gloom which settles down over the landscape.

270—FINISHING TOUCHES

In the patio of a Spanish house a young gallant stands with a small mirror in his hand putting the last touches to his elaborate toilette. On a chair near by are his cloak and guitar. A servant girl brushes his embroidered jacket and, lounging on the back of a chair near by, a young woman in blue and black-chequered costume with a brilliant red embroidered shawl over her arm watches the toilette operations with languid interest. Behind her a staircase leads to an upper story, various objects hang on the wall at the back, and there are several pieces of furniture standing near a doorway on the left.

Friedl, Edler, & Schwartz

Supported by a crouching negress, a young girl with bare arms and shoulders reclines on the ground and behind her is the merchant, who has just removed the veil from her face to display her beauty to a possible purchaser, who stands near with a companion. The gold embroidery on the rich Oriental costumes of the two men engaged in the transaction glitters in the sunlight, and the white burnous of the third relieves the heads of all three against its strong light and luminous shadow. In the background against a high wall on the right is seen a veiled female and there are other figures in the background on the left.

275—THE NEW SUIT OF CLOTHES

+ 57.00

M. Fauvelain

The parents of a small boy have brought him to a tailor's shop to be fitted with a new suit. The scene is laid in the time of the Directory, and the parents, the tailor and his wife and the small boy are dressed in the interesting costumes of the period. The brown and gray garments of the boy are placed on a chair and he stands near, awkwardly conscious, in a short green silk coat, a figured waistcoat and dove-colored breeches. The old tailor is laying down the law about the fit, his wife behind the counter holds the cat and wears a sympathetic smile, and the parents look on with absorbed interest. A bird cage and a brass lamp hang from the ceiling beams and in the background are shelves of goods and many bits of bric-a-brac.

New York

A prominent landscape painter who, during a few years, rapidly ascended to the head of his profession. He was born in New York, 1859. Studied under Albert Bierstadt, M. F. H. De Haas and at the National Academy; above all, he was a graduate of the school of nature. His landscapes are true character studies, in which varieties of vegetation and the varying influences of light and weather are identified with amazing skill. He possessed the very uncommon ability to elaborate detail and to render minute and subtle effects with close finish, yet preserving in his paintings the breadth and dignity of the largest facts. In 1879 he first exhibited at the National Academy, and was awarded one of the Hallgarten prizes in 1889. While in the enjoyment of a flood-tide of success, he went to his summer studio in Ballston, N. Y., where he died in November, 1889. By his death American art experienced a loss not easy to repair.

New York

The career of Ralph Albert Blakelock will find record among the romances of American Art. He was the son of a physician, and was born in New York City in 1847. He was destined for his father's profession, but his native predilection for art and music rebelled. He became his own master, being deprived of the means of securing instruction either as painter or musician. His chief preparation for his life's work was a short tour in the Far West. Its results are encounters in his landscapes with Indian groups, and episodes as accessories—pictures vibrant with a strange and penetrating charm of chromatic harmonies. His color is as original and positive as the theories which his art illustrates, and the individuality of the man impresses itself upon every manifestation of his art.

DIAZ DE LA PEÑA (N. V.)

Paris

Genre and landscape painter. Born at Bordeaux in 1807 of Spanish parents, who were banished from Spain on account of political troubles. At the age of ten he was left an orphan in a strange land, and at fifteen was apprenticed to a porcelain manufacturer, when his talent first displayed itself. After he had quarrelled with and left his master he spent several years in most bitter poverty. When his ability as a wonderful colorist was recognized he painted and sold many pictures, accumulating a vast fortune. Diaz revelled in the enchantment of light and shade; seeking the recesses of the forest where dark masses of luminous shadows abound, and the sunlight filters through the tangle of foliage and branches; and with a magical celerity of brush work recording his impressions in the first impulse of his enthusiasm. Medals: 1844, 1846 and 1848. Cross of the Legion of Honor, 1851. He died at Mentone, November 18, 1876. Diploma to the Memory of Deceased Artists, 1878.

At Rome, which became his principal residence, he studied Raphael and made sketches of Roman life. He was sent to Morocco by the government in 1859 to paint the incidents of General Prim's campaign, and during this and a second visit painted a large picture of the battle of Tetuan, besides making many sketches of Moorish life. He went to Paris in 1866, where, through Zamacois, he entered into business relations with Goupil. The following year he went to Madrid, where he married the daughter of Madrazo, the Director of the Madrid Museum, and studied the works of Velasquez, Ribera and Goya. He spent most of his life in Rome. He gained a great reputation by his vigorous and original style, correct drawing and fine color. Died in Rome, November 21, 1874. Diploma to the Memory of Deceased Artists (Exposition Universelle), 1878. His name, which custom has abbreviated to that which his genius made immortal, was Mariano Fortuny y Carbo.

36—*THE POND IN THE PASTUREINNESS (GEORGE), N.A.

New York

Generally recognized as the greatest of landscape painters; was born at Newburg, N. Y., May 1, 1825. Studied for one month under Regis Ginoux in New York, and visited Europe three times for study. He was elected National Academician in 1868. He died in Scotland on August 3, 1894, while on a summer journey.

In the early days of his study he gave himself up to a profound application to nature. There was not a tree but he analyzed exhaustively. He made a serious study of the anatomy of Nature, and he knew her thoroughly. When this had all been mastered, he gave himself up to expressing his own sentiment before the scene. He went out of doors with the certainty of being able to put down his notions of the time and place unhampered by any technical difficulties, and the results were poems on canvas. It is no exaggeration to say that his work constituted the highest product of landscape art in this country in the century just past, and from the beginning his progress was logical, sound and brilliant.

New York

Mr. Irving was born at Charleston, S. C., in 1826. He was a pupil for some time of Leutze, who left in him, however, little traces of his manner of working. It was at the close of the War of the Rebellion that he first attracted attention as a painter of genre pictures, his initial offering being shown at the Academy of Design in 1867. A picture called "The Wine Tasters" secured for him an election as Associate of the Academy, and he was made an Academician in 1872. He was represented at the Paris Exposition of 1878. He was not without appreciation during his life, but since his death the true value of his talent and his excellent performances have been more fully recognized, until to-day he must be counted as one of the notable figures in the history of native art. Died, 1877.

MINOR (ROBERT C.), N.A.

New York

Landscape painter. Born in New York in 1840. Pupil of Diaz in Paris, and of Van Luppen and Boulanger in Antwerp. Sketched in Germany and Italy. Member of the National Academy, and of the Society of American Artists. His works have in them qualities of luminosity, depths of tone, and ripeness and vitality of color, that carry one out of the domain of modern landscape back to the days when Marilhat painted from his palette of gold, and when Rousseau and Diaz, Dupré and Decamps were at their best. The secret of his power is that, like them, he feels nature as well as sees it, and paints it with heart as well as hand.

RANGER (HENRY W.), A.N.A.

New York

Landscape painter. Born in New York, 1858. Self-taught. Bronze Medal, Paris Exposition, 1900. Member of the American Water Color Society and the National Arts Club. His paintings are shown in a collection by themselves, from time to time, in some one of the smaller New York galleries. He has no prize record, not having been a competitor for official honors or medals. He visited Europe and studied the masterpieces of the modern and ancient schools, but has in the past few years evolved a style of his own. The chief characteristics of his work are depth and richness of tone, and fulness and strength of color. He has travelled extensively, and painted much in Holland.

(1850 - 1908)

Spain

Born in Madrid, and taught to draw by a cavalry captain who practised art as an amateur. He then went to the Madrid Academy, and during his hours of leisure made his living by drawing and engraving on wood. During the summer he would wander off on foot, studying from nature, and living among the gypsies out of doors; at the end of the season being almost compelled to beg his way to Madrid. In 1862 he secured the first Prix de Rome ever given at Madrid for landscape; he then went to Paris, where for four years he studied nature. Zamacois took him in hand, and Meissonier and Daubigny advised him. Medals: Paris, Third Class, 1878; Legion of Honor, 1878.

WYANT (ALEXANDER H.), N.A.

New York

Landscape painter. Born at Port Washington, Ohio, January 11, 1836. Pupil of Hans Gude in Carlsruhe; afterwards studied in London. Elected Academician, 1869. Member of the Society of American Artists and of the American Water Color Society.

The work of the late Alexander H. Wyant is the expression of a mind of great refinement looking at Nature in her most poetical aspect. The interpretation of subtle delicacy of twilight; the rendering of the opalescent tones of gray weather—all the gentle, loving moods of the landscape he expressed with alluring charm and fineness of perception. Early in his career he went to the Adirondack Mountains, where he identified himself with the scenery which he ever saw under the most tender conditions of sentiment and romance. Rarely, if ever, dramatic, his renditions of the stretches of mountain or valley were given in true poetic vein, delicately, adequately, with gentleness and deep feeling. Even when he found themes in the approaching storm, they were the more delicate passages of color effects, which he rendered with exquisite charm. By his death in 1892 America suffered a severe loss. He had received a recompense in Paris, at the Universal Exhibition of 1889, and was universally admitted to be one of the ablest and most sympathetic landscape painters in all American art.
